HEALTHY EXERCISE
fresh air and proper food, help to keep a woman in good condition. It is insufficient for some, weak or borne down as they are by the ailments and irregularities peculiar to their sex.

They're easily helped, though; there's a remedy in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—that will build up and cure every enfeebled woman. It's the prescription of a physician; has been tested in thousands of cases, and never found wanting.

The only risk that's taken is that of the manufacturer who promises to refund the money if no benefit is experienced.

This "Prescription" reaches the origin of the trouble. It cures, such as sleeplessness, nervousness, disorders, such as dyspepsia, or St. Vitus's dance, depend upon the irregularities and displacements of the "curative" by regulating and correcting those functions and organic changes.

Dr. Sage's Remedy positively cures Catarrh.

Heaven A Great City.

Rev. Dr. Moses D. Hoge preached yesterday at Brown Memorial Church, Baltimore.

The church was filled to its utmost capacity. Dr. Hoge preached an eloquent sermon, taking his text from St. John XIV., 2: "In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you; I go to prepare a place for you."

Dr. Hoge spoke first of the various descriptions which had been assigned to heaven by different writers, and discussed the question first from a practical point of view, and later spiritually.

In the course of his remarks he said: "It is extremely comforting to feel that there has been so much preparation made for those that lead a righteous life. Indeed, as some writer has put it, the sting of death, the mystery of the grave, and the vague apprehension for the unfathomed future, fade, indeed, before this forcible declaration."

"In my Father's house are many mansions," said he, "is oftentimes indefinite, and everyone cherishes some view on the subject. If heaven is a city, then there must be houses, as we understand the word, and places for divine worship. If it is a kingdom, then in this kingdom must be located cities, towns, villages, hamlets and private dwellings. Then there will also be found sanctuaries and tabernacles. As good children are grouped on earth, so will they be grouped in heaven, and my brethren, heaven was not intended to destroy anything pure. I know one family in Baltimore that consists of grandparents, parents and children, and every Sabbath day they can be seen sitting in their seats in church. On communion Sunday, when the holy sacrament is administered, they kneel together and when they go forth into the outer world they are buoyed up against the sins and depravity of mankind."

"This is a splendid example of faith and verity. I say that so as they now sit together so shall they sit in the kingdom of heaven."

"Then the logical view of the case presents itself. If I knew my friendship for a man would some day be destroyed, I would cease to be his friend. Heaven will last through all eternity and will never fail. Cicero is quoted as saying: 'I comfort myself with the thought that when I die I go forth to meet those dear friends who have preceded me.'"

"Oh, my brethren, is not this a balm for the weary and oppressed, the sick and the troubled; that this man, living in the day when the power of Christianity had not asserted itself, should utter such a sentiment!"

"Let us be happy, then, that there are placed for the righteous many mansions, and that when we meet above we may join in a universal anthem of praise. And oh! may I take some part in that immortal song!"

"Wonder and joy shall tune my harp, And love command my tongue."

TWO CHILDREN FALL TO DEATH.
Margaret Crimmins, wife of Patrick Crimmins, an engineer, of New York, left two of her three children, aged 2 and 4, playing Sunday morning in the back room of her apartments on the fifth floor, while she went downstairs to look for Pat, the oldest boy. When she came back she stopped for a moment in her kitchen, and then went in to the next room. She did not see her babies as she glanced about the room, and thought for an instant they might be hiding.

But one of the windows, where the shutters had been tied with a bit of cord, caught her gaze. The shutters were wide apart and the thin white cord was broken in two. She sprang to the window and looked down. On the stones, five stories below, lay two motionless, ghastly-clad bodies. Mrs. Crimmins' cry aroused every one in the building and the children were found dead. The shock to Mrs. Crimmins, who is again about to become a mother, was so great as to necessitate the aid of a physician.

STRANGE CASE.

"Our daughter was so terribly afflicted with nervousness that she lost the use of her right arm and had to give up all her studies. We feared St. Vitus's dance, and but for Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve she would have had that affliction. Physicians did her no good. Three bottles of Nerve restored her."
